

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can make this a power-play day! Spotlight on success, achievement, promotion, money and love. Important individual seeks your counsel, asks you to participate in community or political project. Relationship intensifies and you had better be serious.

I almost never read the astrological section of the daily newspaper, but for some reason, I did so & matter. Such a reading! It would appear that virtually anything is possible today. My plan for the day is roughly this: at home until about 1:30 PM; then to City Hall for a few hours; return to 8 Hendrick Lane. Kay Colville arrived in town from Pittsburgh her son (I saw her bedroom light on last night) and today Chuck & her son Mark arrive from the state of Washington. They will begin to "break up" the residence of Eli E. Hendrick. What a melancholy task. I really wonder if it is so necessary. Why don't they just leave the house as it is? But then no one ever does, and probably it wouldn't work unless the house were to be made into an historical landmark and preserved as is, and so much of the beautiful contents of this house will be packed up and transported to the West Coast. The moving truck comes on Monday and that will be that.

All of this was done in two hours and only two people know that I did it: Patrolman McDonald (from whom I borrowed the mop and pail) and Charlotte Moro's son-in-law (the meter man). Je me demande s'il donnera un rapport à Madame le Maire, elle-même. That would be a nice feather pour porter sur mon chapeau, if you please. At 4 PM I left the building and returned to 8 HL via the Salvation Army store on North Main (nothing interesting) and Zozzera's on North Church, où j'ai acheté des provisions. Ray Sniper and Ed Moorhead were supposed to show up for work cet après-midi and neither of them did. How undependable most people are. I returned to 8 HL and decided to put on formal attire for the
